A new strike by teachers, the third in less than six weeks, cripples the New York City school system and keeps more than a million pupils out of classes.

EHS Bids For $63,609 Approved

By NOEL DODD

Bids totalling $63,609 for equipment for the Eisenhower High School addition were approved Monday night at a meeting of the Warren County School District Board of Directors. The bids, submitted by about 20 different concerns, are for typewriters, duplicating machines, classroom and office furniture, library furniture, athletic equipment, shop equipment, electronic lab shop, and mechanical drawing equipment. In other action, board members unveiled the first edition of a monthly newsletter.

This newsletter, Dr. Thomas K. Barratt, school superintendent, noted, will include articles of general interest for the staff and public. "The newsletter should be an effective communication device for improving district identity and individual knowledge," he said. Board members voted to send letters of congratulations to National Merit semi-finalists and those earning letters of commendation.

Commissioners Pave Way For Holly Apts. Expansion

The Warren County Commissioners Monday morning voiced unanimous approval for a change in the site development plan of Holly Apartments which paves the way for construction of additional units.

Eyed is construction of 11 structures housing four units—a total of 44 new units at the Conewango ave. ext. site in Glade township. Also included in the planning are car ports totaling 82 spaces and 2.96 acres dedicated to Glade township for recreation purposes.

The proposed site development change was tentatively approved by the county and state planning commissions and aired at a required public meeting called by the commissioners.

While there was some opposition from adjacent property owners, the commissioners after a thorough tour and study

Highways Dept. Receives $100,000 in Equipment

New highway maintenance equipment, representing an investment in excess of $100,000 was received Monday by Warren-Forest Counties Dept. of Highways.

The new equipment, an asphalt paver; chip spreader; and motor grader will be used to maintain some 550 miles of state roads in Warren county and some 220 miles of state roads in Forest County.

The asphalt paver will be used for resurfacing primary roads in the county. In the past this type of machinery had to be borrowed from other districts with the highway department having the equipment at their disposal for only a few days each year. The newpaver will enable the department to renew the surface of county roads every five years, or more often when needed.

The other equipment, a surface chip spreader, will be used on secondary roads, and the motor grader will be used for maintaining berms on various state roads.

The Warren department will also be receiving, shortly, a service truck for field use in making monthly field inspections, as well as two new dump or spreader trucks.

Examining the new equipment at highway department headquarters, Starbrick are Rep. William Allen; George Keihl, Forest County superintendent, Pa. Dept. Highways; and Alton Barton, Warren County, superintendent, Pa. Dept. Highways.

endorsed the plans as submitted by the developer.

It was the opinion of the commissioners the Holly Apartment complex was designed to enhance the aesthetic value of all surrounding properties noting the developer had made vast improvements in an area that was formerly brush and swamp-land.

It was also noted Monday that possible increased traffic should not be an unsurmountable problem and that increased tax revenue from the new apartment units would benefit the economy of Glade township.

The contemplated recreation area will be cleared, landscaped and equipped with picnic tables for the residents' use.

In other business the commissioners approved bills in the amount of $4,592.52 for payment.

County Master Plan Receives Little Attention from Public

(Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series of articles prepared by Times-Mirror and Observer staffer Walt Erbland to offer our readers a condensed and simplified version of the new Warren County Master Plan.)

MASTER PLAN I (OBJECTIVES AND POLICIES) At $10 per copy Warren County's master plan is not a best seller.

A small folder enumerating some of the policies and objectives of the plan has had wider circulation, but except for some of its more dramatic proposals including some already under way, the 183-page document compiled over a three-year period and published last spring at a cost of $45,000 has received little inspection or discussion by the general public.

Basically the master plan is a projection, based on trends and records, of the growth of the county for the next 20 years and a series of proposals and general principals to meet the demands of those decades.

To meet the pressures of a growing population, approximately 56,000 by 1980, and to prevent a helter skelter patternless development, the plan establishes countywide arrangements of land use, traffic circulation and recreation.

The objectives for land use are based largely on already established patterns that predominate in various areas. Future development is related to the suitability of the topography for a designated use and where needed to the existence or feasibility of introducing water and sewer service.

Zoning is to be used as a tool to maintain areas designated as residential, commercial, industrial and recreational and to protect each area from the introduction of incompatible land uses.

For commercial development, the plan attempts to promote concentration of businesses with adequate parking in order to end "commercial ribbon development" along the highways. Another goal is to provide additional sites for

Congress Adjourns, Leaving A Stack Of Unfinished Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stop-and-go 90th Congress ground to a quiet adjournment Monday after a session that produced some historic laws but left a stack of unfinished legislation, notably some political hot potatoes.

But President Johnson has served notice he may call the Senate back to ratify the treaty aimed at halting the spread of nuclear weapons. He is consulting with some of the 80 nations that signed the pact to see if such a summons is feasible, presumably after the Nov. 5 elections.

Only about 20 House members and a dozen senators were on hand when the House quit at 2 p.m. and the Senate at 2:17 p.m.

Most of the other members of Congress had already gone home to campaign, with election day only three weeks away and all 432 House seats and a third of the 100 Senate seats up for grabs.

It was the lack of a quorum in the House that blocked adjournment Friday and Saturday. Backers of a House-passed bill to open the way for radio-television debates by the three major presidential candidates were trying to keep Congress in session until the Senate acted on the measure.

The House group led by Rep. James O'Hara, D-Mich., insisted on a quorum of 217 members to approve the usually perfunctory adjournment resolution. Too few members were in town to muster that number.

But after some wrangling over the issue at the Monday session O'Hara announced he was giving up because, he said, it was obvious the Senate would not act.

O'Hara said he decided to drop his delaying tactics also because Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has reserved one hour for a televised debate next weekend and has invited Republican Richard M. Nixon and American Independent candidate George C. Wallace to appear with him.

Apollo Greets America In Seven-Minute TV Show

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo 7 Commander Walter M. Schirra Jr., wearing his familiar lop-sided grin, greeted America from space with a joke Monday by televising a sign reading "Hello from the lovely Apollo room, high atop everything."

Schirra, who refused to turn on the on-board television camera Saturday, could not resist the temptation Monday to flash signs to the folks back home.

Moments after the first sign, the Navy captain showed a second message which read, "Keep those cards and letters coming in, folks."

The TV pictures from inside the Apollo 7 cabin showed Schirra on his commander's couch, and Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele standing in the center, still wearing the suit he wore into space for last Friday's launch at Cape Kennedy, Walter Cunningham, the third crewman, was seen only briefly on the left side of the screen.

The crew spent much of the seven-minute transmission grinning into the camera and laughing at comments from the ground. None of the three waved at the camera.

"You forgot to shave this morning, Eisele," Mission control said at one point.

"I lost my razor," the Air Force major replied. Astronauts cannot shave in space because the absence of gravity would allow the cut bristle to float around the spacecraft.

The television transmission, mission control said, "was shorter than anticipated," but the quality was called "amazing and much better than expected." The transmission, scheduled to last 10 to 12 minutes, was carried live by television networks. A second telecast from space was scheduled for 9:25 a.m. (CDT) Tuesday.

Bradford to Get $78,000 from Model Cities Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development Monday announced the selection of Bradford, Pa., as one of 17 more cities ticketed for the model cities program.

The federal agency said $78,000 will be made available to Bradford for early planning.

The program is an attack on specific neighborhoods in each of the cities selected to show how some of the worst slum neighborhoods in the country can be transformed into pleasant places to live by focusing all available programs and approaches on them.

Zoning Change Will Not Affect Ski Resorts

By FRANCES RHODES

YOUNGVILLE — Owners of York Mountain Ski Area and a Warren resident, Mrs. Dennie DiPierro, attended the hearing on proposed zoning changes at the Youngsville Borough Council meeting last night, and received sympathetic consideration of their objections.

Recommendations of the Youngsville Planning Commission called for changing the existing "Industrial" classification of 2,260 feet of frontage on the new service road along the Pennsylvania Railroad Right-of-Way, to "Residential 1, single, to permit subdivision of the land for housing development.

Elmer Hill, for the ski way-developers, pointed out that they owned 1,200 feet of the frontage, and there was "no place there" for housing.

"We have already lost between 80 and 100 parking places to the road. We could not possibly conform to residential zoning requirements," "We would be out of business," said Hill.

Mrs. DiPierro said she and her husband "had plans" under the existing classification for their 170 feet by 100 foot lot adjoining the ski area.

Since there were no other objections, Council passed a resolution on a motion by Councilman James Thompson, seconded by Councilman Hugh Logan, to make the recommended change from Oak up to but not including the ski area and DiPierro.

Laverne Grady, a property owner who favored the change was advised that council had no plans to construct water and sewer lines to the area. Persons building there would have to provide their own facilities, which must meet state sanitary requirements.

Ward's

many of the public opinion poll responses came from store employees.

"None that I know of," Linman replied. He suggested, however, that council should search its minds and determine whether or not a five year old plan is right for the borough today or not.

Plue Wendelboe, Redevelopment Authority director, was present to remind that the authority carries out the plans of the local governing body and thus has no authority to change the plans for the Liberty Street Parking project unless council changes its mind.

With federal funds already set aside for the program, the change asked by M-W will require a major change in the ultimate project plan which has been approved by the county commissioners, council, redevelopment authority and HUD.

Two members of the Rehabilitation Alumni Association, planning a reunion in Warren next year, appeared before council to discuss architectural barriers which make use of the borough's public buildings and street crossings difficult for the physically handicapped.

Herbert Hoover and Marilou Andereg pointed in particular to Indiana, Pa., where specific ramps have been constructed to aid those confined to wheelchairs, on crutches or forced to operate with artificial limbs.

Councilman Jack Donaldson recommended writing to Indiana, who has apparently solved the problem, to see what that community has done. There are about 270 persons in the borough classified as handicapped and nearly 800 in the county.

Additional objections were voiced as to the proposed Warren Route 6 bypass, particularly in the Ludlow Street area and Torrance stated that while the public works committee might consider suggestions it would probably be a case of being "too late very soon or maybe already." He added that nothing at this late date should interfere with the Warren bypass.

Dan's Chevrolet was the only and lowest responsible bidder for two, new eight cylinder police cars at $3,048 plus trade-in of two, 1966-67 sedans.

In other parking discussion, Jake Levinson of the parking authority stated multiple-level parking was being studied although it appeared to be economically unfeasible. Price of parking was a major factor.

Mayor D. E. Conaway recalled problems posed at last month's council meeting in regard to War Memorial Field and its adjoining playground. He said he had met with Police Chief Michael Egan and members of the force and the decline in the number of complaints from residents in the area was "very remarkable."

The mayor stated that to the best of his knowledge the situation is quiet and suggested that council members check out any rumors of trouble with him before getting excited.

Conaway said he thought the police department was perfectly capable of handling any situation provided they get the information soon enough.

War Memorial Field is now partially lighted throughout the night and additional lights will be added.

Other matters discussed were referred to the proper committees.

There were 14 members of council present.

State police confiscated approximately $900 in football pool materials and $653 in currency from horse race and football bets.

businesses that would enlarge the county's economic base and create employment.

The objectives for highways are the development of new roads to provide efficient and adequate accessibility to all parts of the county in all seasons with a minimum of conflict and congestion, a highway network to provide roads for through traffic and access for local traffic, and to protect roads designated as scenic routes. The plan seeks to coordinate existing roads with proposed improvements and to protect urban areas from possible adverse effects due to circulation changes.

Master Plan

Recreational objectives include a comprehensive development of the Allegheny Reservoir area by the Forest Service and enlargement and establishment of facilities within urban areas.

To meet these objectives the plan makes specific proposals on integration of existing highways and new roads to correspond to likely traffic patterns, designates areas for construction of parks and recreational facilities, and offer suggestions for creation of a county airport, a community college and countywide water and sewage systems. The plan also suggests consolidation or relocation of some of the county's schools, and the closing of others.

PUC Sets Hearing On Lottsville RR Crossing

The Erie Lackawanna Railroad crossing at Lottsville, scene of a number of fatal accidents over the last decades, is due to be examined with an eye toward correcting the conditions which have made it hazardous to highway traffic.

The Pennsylvania Utilities Commission has scheduled a hearing at Warren County Courthouse for Oct. 24.

The hearing will involve testimony from the railroad, Freehold township, Warren County, state highway department and Pennsylvania State Police, whose troopers have investigated the long series of crashes at the crossing.

Investigation will be made into the physical condition of the crossing, the safety or lack of it of the highway crossing the tracks and adequacy of the signals.

Most recent fatal at the crossing occurred last summer when a Jamestown, N.Y. man was killed and a passenger in his car seriously injured.

Zoning

The meeting was recessed until tonight, when Council meets with the Planning Commission to consider proposed changes in the rules and regulations governing subdivision.

The 23 proposed modifications would simplify preliminary procedures, speed action, or remove superfluous or unnecessarily restricted subdivision requirements. One change would define a subdivision as development of three or more lots, instead of two as present. Another would reduce the maximum block size from 1,600 feet to 1,000 feet, and yet another would rule that no trees may be placed between sidewalk and curb, but must be inside property lines.

Woman Escapes Serious Injury

A 46-year-old, RD 1, Grand Valley woman escaped serious injury in a one car accident in Southwest Township about two and three tenths miles south of Grand Valley Monday, according to state police of the local substation.

Reta F. Adams drove off the highway, police reported, lost control of her vehicle which went over an embankment and over turned. Damage was estimated at $730, according to police.

Jamestown Hotel to House Low Income Senior Citizens

JAMESTOWN — Jamestown's GOP City Council at a stormy three-hour meeting Monday night, voted to go ahead with plans to convert 251 rooms in the Hotel Jamestown into 105 apartments for low income senior citizens.

In another important move, Council took two steps toward bringing a new City Hall closer to reality.

The federally financed Senior Citizens housing project gained Council approval by a vote of 9 to 3, with Councilmen Erickson, Weaver, and Colander voting "No." Prior to the affirmative vote, Councilman Weaver tried to table the resolution but was defeated 9-3.

A 30-minute discussion of the plan with Dr. Milton D. Baiter, developer of the project, was held prior to the vote. It was explained that local developers will remodel the hotel and then sell it to the federal government for a profit. The government will then sell it to the Jamestown Housing Authority for $1.

A newly-created housing authority will be responsible for the project's operation.

Council also agreed to buy some property on which to build a new City Hall. In a very long debate, which saw veteran Councilman Warren Erickson hold the floor for more than one hour, facts figures and statistics were presented against the entire City Hall project. Erickson repeatedly tried to get answers from the Council's Public Projects Committee on various aspects of the new municipal structure to be built at an estimated cost of $4.7 million dollars.

Erickson tried twice to table the motion but was defeated both times by votes of 8-4. When the vote finally came to acquire two tracts of land on Prendergast ave. next to the City Hall for a price of $170,000, the vote was 8 to 4 in favor.

Erickson, Weaver, and Colander and Peterson voted "No." A second resolution called for the city to undertake condemnation proceedings against the owner of the Nordic Temple unless the owner bettered his original offer of $117,000. The resolution authorizing condemnation proceedings was again approved 8 to 4.

In another surprise, John E. Walker, new president of Art Metal Inc., offered to sell the city the company's office building on Jones and Gifford ave. Art Metal began yesterday to move its offices into its new facility in the Town of Busti.

It is not yet known what will happen to the Art Metal Building which brings approximately $200,000 in taxes to the city, but authoritative sources report that the company will abandon the building within the next two months.

Most of the other resolutions on the council agenda were of a routine nature.

Susan Ongley of Youngsville High School won a letter of commendation.

Board members approved a list of new non-professional employees. Norge E. Luvison, director of buildings and grounds, reported little difficulty in securing certain non-professional help, but did report "trouble" in hiring custodial workers.

"We have trouble keeping people because we can't compete with private industry when it comes to salaries," he said.

Frank Christy, director, Public Personnel Services, reported that most district students have already had a hearing test. This program, he said, is made possible through the cooperation of the County Speech and Hearing Therapists who are Paul Volkman, Rose Ashbaugh, Sally McCullough and Michael Brennan.

Christy asked that seven emotionally disturbed students be excluded from the school program and that another eight students be given homebound instruction. The eight, he said, are physically unable to attend regular classes. Board members approved the recommendations.

NYC School System Crippled By New Teachers Strike

(C) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—A new strike by teachers, the third in less than six weeks, crippled the New York City school system Monday and kept more than a million pupils out of classes. There was no sign of a break in the walkout by some 48,000 teachers, which was sparked by union objections to the Board of Education's reopening of Junior High School 271 and other developments in the Ocean Hill-Brownsville decentralized district in Brooklyn. No meetings were held between the union and the city board and, as of Monday, none was scheduled for today. Albert Shanker, the president of the United Federation of Teachers, said that the strike could last "a month or longer." He said that the city board should either close the junior high school or "get the gangsters out of the school so that teachers can teach." The union has contended that its members at the school have been harassed and threatened with harm by other teachers and outsiders who object to their presence. Rhody A. McCoy, the administrator of the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican district, which has been the focal point of the three strikes, said that he was exploring the pos-

Sirhan's Trial Is Delayed Until Dec. 9

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan received Monday a trial delay until Dec. 9 and prosecution assurance that it would withhold no evidence valuable to his defense in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

In a one-hour, 11-minute hearing — seventh and longest yet for the 24-year-old Jordanian — his murder trial scheduled for Nov. 1 was postponed because a still unidentified co-defense lawyer is involved in another case. The judge said the jury will be locked up nights and weekends so it will not be exposed to outside influences.

The prosecution turned over to the defense big batches of its evidence: statements, it said, from 67 people who saw Sirhan at the Ambassador Hotel the night of the shooting and 15 who saw him on a target range beforehand.

Lynn D. Compton, the chief prosecutor, told the court: "I want to make it clear that there is nothing in our possession we seek to withhold from the defense."

The senator from New York was shot early June 5 just after he had proclaimed victory in California's Democratic presidential primary.

Erie firemen responded to seven false alarms early Monday. Six of the alarms were in a 13 block area over a 30 minute period. The six alarms between 12:02 and 12:34 a.m. were believed to be the work of some persons trying to cause confusion for the fire department, according to the chief fire inspector. Each false alarm costs the city and therefore the taxpayers between $250 and $300. Monday morning's alarms costing almost $2,100.

Two Erie residents are in custody and a third is being sought by New York State police in connection with the theft of a safe containing $1,154.27 from the home of Clayton W. ## 80,000 Soft Coal Miners Win $7 Per Day in Wage Increases WASHINGTON (AP) — A new contract providing $7 per day in wage increases over a three-year period for 80,000 soft coal miners was signed Monday. "This is the best contract ever negotiated," said W. A. "Tony" Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers Union, in signing the contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

Boyle said instructions had gone out to the striking miners in 22 states to return to work.

The contract provides an immediate $3 per day wage hike retroactive to Oct. 1, an additional $2 per day Oct. 1, 1969, and a final $2 daily Oct. 1, 1970. Wages before the new agreement ranged from $27.25 to $30.25 per day. The wage hikes in the new contract, which average out to $2.33 per day in each year of the contract, are the highest in the industry's history.

In addition to the wage increases, the new agreement provides improved vacations and a $120 Christmas bonus for employees who have worked a certain number of days in the year.

George Judy, president of the bituminous association, said the cost of the fringe benefits could not be estimated immediately.

Judy signed the agreement for the coal association, whose members employ some 80,000 mine workers, plus four other firms employing approximately 10,000 other miners. Boyle said the pattern-setting contract will eventually be applied to a total of about 130,000 miners.

The new agreement also abolishes lower wage differentials of $2 per day in Alabama and West Kentucky.

Other gains include improved portal-to-portal pay. "Underground employees will be paid while being lowered down the shaft" of coal mines, Boyle said.

The agreement also requires companies to provide soap for bathhouses, which in some cases previously had to be supplied by the miners.

And it provides that companies will sell coal at cost to the widows of miners to heat their homes.

The agreement also expands company-wide seniority to cover men laid off jobs, who can now exercise seniority rights at other mines of the same company. Previously, company-wide seniority applied only when a mine was permanently shut down.

The union got nowhere in its efforts to stop association companies from purchasing coal from non-union mines. A union source said that previous contract provisions attempting to limit such purchases were still being litigated in the courts, so the matter was dropped for the time being.

Boyle also said there was considerable discussion of the problem of pneumoconiosis, a lung disease believed caused by coal dust, but nothing was written into the contract about dust control.

Judy said that in addition to signing the contract for companies of the Bituminous Association, which covers some 70 percent of unionized mining operations, he also signed for four other companies that authorized him to do so.

Prison Guards Wound 24 Convicts in Arkansas

CUMMINS PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP) — Prison guards wounded 24 convicts Monday by firing shotgun blasts into a crowd of penned-up prisoners to force them to go to work in prison farm fields.

Supt. Victor C. Urban confirmed the shootings. He also said the shotgun blasts, with birdshot, was a reasonable tactic under the circumstances.

About 100 prisoners had refused to work until the prison system complied with several demands they submitted to prison personnel. No convict had any type of weapon, Urban said. During the morning, about 22 of the prisoners changed their minds and went to work. The remaining 75 or so were in a fenced enclosure when the shots were fired.

Following the shooting, the prisoners who had refused to work but escaped being wounded went into the fields to work.

Urban said the first shot was fired by Gary Haydis, an associate superintendent for custody of the 1,100 convicts at the sprawling 21,000-acre prison farm 60 miles southeast of Little Rock.

"Mr. Haydis told them to go back to work, and they refused," Urban said. "He fired his shotgun in the air as a warning shot, and they did not move. So he fired into them. Then they moved."

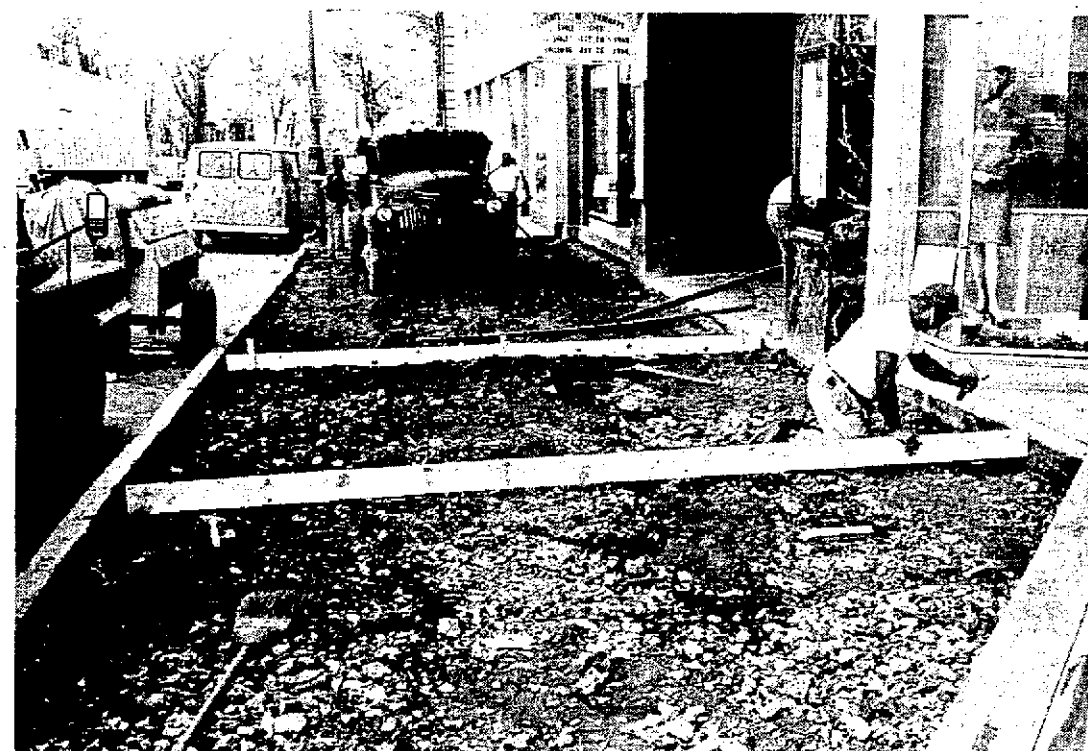

Urban said he did not witness the shooting.

Urban said other guards followed Haydis' lead and also let loose shotgun blasts.

The convicts were wounded in the head, back and arms, the superintendent said.

The prison system drew national publicity a year ago when Urban's predecessor as superintendent, Thomas O. Murton, said three skeletons had been recovered from shallow graves on prison property. He expressed the theory that they were the remains of inmates secretly murdered and buried while serving prison sentences.

A State Police investigation reported the theory was improbable. The report said it was more likely that the skeletons were the remains of inmates who had died but whose bodies were not claimed by relatives. The skeletons were in a pauper's graveyard, the report said.

Getting Political Attention

It is becoming more and more apparent that Warren County is no longer considered a Republican stronghold -- a disease from which it has suffered in the past. By this we are not taking political sides, but when the Republicans enjoyed a wide majority of votes and the Democrats a handful we had nothing to gain. When the GOP was in the state office they could ignore the area because they were a cinch to carry it in an election. When the Democrats were in office they could shrug their shoulders and say what do we have to gain. As a result Warren County's road program, along with others, was shoved aside up until the last few years.

The Democratic voter registration in the county has grown to the point where it is about a 2 to 1 ratio. More important the Democrats here have become more active and are making more noise.

Rhodesian Escalation

Back on May 29, it may be recalled, the U. N. Security Council adopted a resolution imposing new and harsher sanctions on Rhodesia. None of the earlier resolutions of sanction had succeeded, but the U. N. has its own rule in such matters, the rule that nothing succeeds like failure. So the Council adopted new sanctions, stopping just short of war.

Two months later, on July 29, President Johnson issued an executive order intended to implement the U. N. resolution. Oddly enough, scarcely a word of this executive order appeared in the American press. The silence was especially curious inasmuch as the Johnsonian edict has no peacetime parallel. It was designed to throttle all commerce, of any sort, between the United States and Rhodesia. The order of July 29 was drastic, but apparently not drastic enough. On August 13, the Treasury Department issued still further prohibitions having to do with Rhodesia. With these maladections, it was thought, every trace of Rhodesia at last had been rooted out.

But ah! The keen eye of the Treasury perceived that a flicker of life remained. The spunky little Rhodesian Information Service was still in operation out at 2852 McGill Terrace in Washington. The

THE HARRIS SURVEY

The loneliest voters in America in 1968 are the Negroes. At last count, 83 percent of the blacks expressed an intent to vote for Hubert Humphrey, compared with only 26 percent of the white majority.

When 95 per cent of the Negroes cast their ballots for Lyndon Johnson in 1964, they were joined by nearly 60 percent of the white people. But in 1968 the mainstream has shifted drastically, and Negroes find themselves isolated from the dominant views of white society:

- A majority of 52 percent of Negroes feels that police brutality is a major cause for the breakdown of law and order. No more than 10 percent of the whites agree.
- Only 8 percent of the blacks feel that "Negroes have gone too far in their demands," compared with 66 percent of the whites.
- A majority of Negroes, 60 percent, feels that George Wallace is a "racist," but only a minority, 39 percent, of white people shares this view.
- A small 3 percent of the Negroes feel that "Hubert Humphrey is too liberal, especially on civil rights," compared with 50 percent of whites who feel this way.
- While 26 percent of black people feel that "the courts have been a major cause for the breakdown of law and order," 54 percent of white people express this view.
- A heavy majority, 72 percent, of Negroes feels that "the progress in civil rights should be speeded up," but only 28 percent of the white public shares this sense of urgency.
- Some 25 percent of all Negroes feel that "black militants have been a major cause of the breakdown of law and order," compared with 63 percent of all whites.
- A high 85 percent of Negroes give a positive rating to the job President Johnson is doing, an attitude held by only 39 percent of white people.

Perhaps as a consequence of their sensing the wide gulf which separates their attitudes about America from the white majority, 17 percent of Negroes, compared with only 9 percent of whites, said they "might sit out this election altogether."

Earlier this year, the Harris Survey reported that black alienation across the country had risen from 35 to 54 percent in the past two years. What the figure will be after the election in November cannot be predicted, but it is unlikely to diminish.

The implications of the wide cleavage between the white and black communities in this election could be many. Clearly, the question of equal rights for Negroes is at one and the same time both a major issue determining the outcome of the election and also a major problem for the nation, no matter who is finally elected.

In terms of the election, the roots of the sharp rise in support for George Wallace can be traced directly to the widespread white feeling that "things have gone too far on racial matters." Over 90 percent of all Wallace supporters feel that progress on race should be slowed down. Nixon draws twice as much support from people who want a brake put on racial integration as from those who want the pace accelerated.

Yet, when asked directly, the American people, including 58 percent of the whites, agree by 2 to 1 that "America has discriminated against Negroes for too long." Even a plurality of white Southerners admits to this proposition. Only die-hard Wallace supporters disagree.

The problem clearly is that most Americans believe in principle that discrimination against blacks is indefensible, but the process of achieving integration and an end to discrimination seems to be most difficult for a majority of whites to face in terms of their daily lives.

In the meantime, the net impact of this election is likely to be a widening of the distance between the white and black communities. Obviously, there are many who welcome this development even in the Negro community. But whether this increased separation and possibly aggravated alienation will make it easier for the next President to solve the racial dilemma in America is an entirely different question.

ART BUCHWALD Crucial Vietnam Question

WASHINGTON — In all the discussions on what went wrong in Vietnam, no one has asked the crucial question: "Who was the first American adviser to South Vietnam, and what kind of advice did he give to get us in so much trouble?"

Through careful research and extraordinary luck, I managed to locate him the other day. His name is Keenan Rutledge and he now works for an automobile company recalling faulty steering wheels.

At first Keenan was reluctant to discuss the role he played in Vietnam, but after plying him with drinks he opened up.

"I was a private in the Army," Keenan said, "stationed at Fort Bragg back in 1954. I was on KP one day and the sergeant came in and said, 'Rutledge, how would you like to get off KP?' I asked what I had to do and he said, 'There's some place called Vietnam and they need an adviser for their army. The captain said to take someone from the KP list!'

"But Sarge, what should I advise them?"

"How do I know? I don't even know where Vietnam is," Keenan looked into his glass. "I figured anything was better than KP, so I packed my duffel bag and waited for available transport. In those days everything was based on priority. It took three months before anyone would fly me to Vietnam. Well, I got there and showed up at the palace in Saigon. Everyone was waiting for me from the premier on down and the first thing they asked me was, 'What's your advice?'

"I said, 'I don't like the looks of things,' and this impressed the hell out of them. I then said, 'The first thing you ought to do is defend yourselves.'

"They liked that, but I could tell they were still disturbed and finally one of the cabinet officers said, 'We respect your advice, but what bothers us is why the United States would send us a private to solve our military problems.'

"I thought fast and said, 'This is just a disguise to throw off the Communist agents. I'm really a corporal.'

"That satisfied them, and they said they would do anything I told them.

"Well, there I was in Vietnam all by myself, and they were counting on me to save them. I wrote a letter to the Pentagon telling them about the advice I had given the South Vietnamese so far and they congratulated me and asked me if there was anything I wanted. I had just seen the movie 'Wake Island' on television, so as a gag I radioed back, 'Send me more Japs.'

"This must have gotten them very confused in Washington, because the next thing I knew they sent out an inspector general to find out what was going on. I told him that things were going very well and I expected to be home by Christmas. The inspector general reported this back to the secretary of defense who went on television and announced to the American public, 'Our boys in Vietnam will be home by Christmas.'

"In the meantime the the South Vietnamese were leaning on me pretty heavily for advice, and since I couldn't be everywhere at the same time, I asked the Pentagon to send out another adviser. Since I was out there first, I was the senior adviser and he was the junior adviser. I was promoted to sergeant. Now the United States was committed, because it had two men in Vietnam. When Bob Hope heard about it he came out and did a show for the two of us.

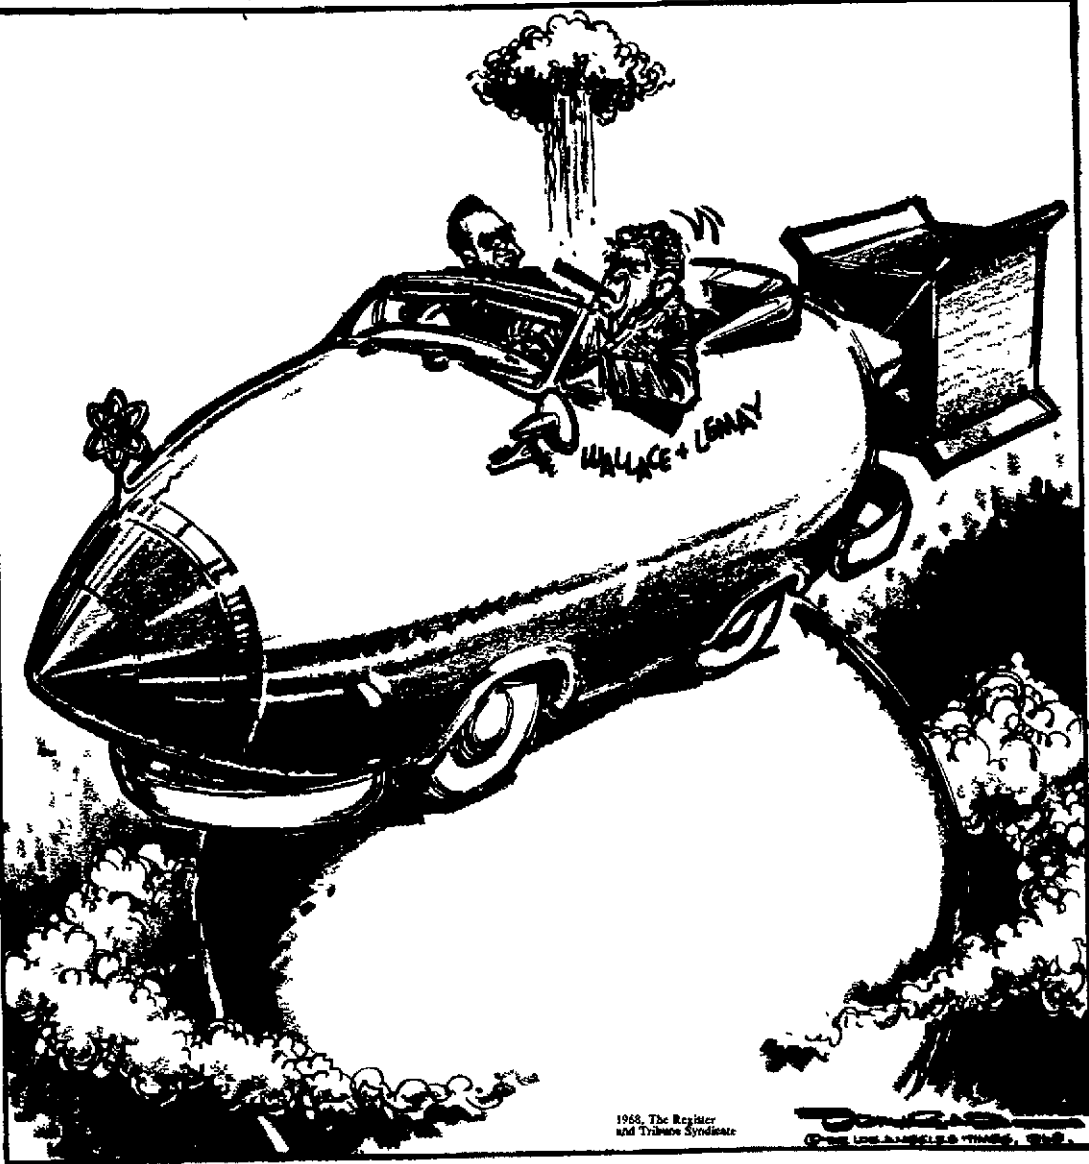

"Unfortunately, the South Vietnamese kept asking for more and more advice, so we had to keep asking for more and more advisers. One thing led to another and pretty soon I was commanding 40,000 advisers and had the rank of major general. I guess if I had stayed I would have had Westmoreland's job."

"What made you leave?"

"The South Vietnamese got sore at me, I told them if they ever hoped to win the war they'd have to win the hearts and minds of the people, and they said, angrily, 'When we want your advice we'll ask for it.'"

"The first Communist who lies down in front of my A-bomb... That's the last A-bomb he'll ever lie down in front of!"

DREW PEARSON Who's Calling Nixon's Shots?

WASHINGTON — The deeper you dig into Richard Nixon's lucrative law practice, the more it looks as if his Wall Street law firm is calling the shots in his presidential campaign.

Not only have his law partners virtually taken over his campaign, but he has been issuing campaign statements that coincide remarkably with the interests of his clients.

The pattern has been disturbing enough to raise questions about the influence his law firm will have on U.S. policy if he is elected President.

By baring his personal finances, Nixon has acknowledged that the voters have a right to know about his financial ties. Every presidential candidate should release his income tax returns, list of all law clients and identify his sources of income. For the voters are entitled to all the facts, not just the cold figures from an auditor's statement.

Nixon listed his net worth as $515,830 but placed only a $45,000 value on his equity in the law firm. Our own investigation indicates that he takes in around $250,000 a year from his law practice. Not long ago he boasted to a friend that his income tax alone is now double the $35,000 salary he used to collect as Vice President.

Nixon joined the respected old Wall Street firm of Mudge, Stern Baldwin and Todd after losing the California governorship in 1962. A senior partnership was arranged for Nixon by two of the law firm's biggest clients, Pepsi-Cola and Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical.

Discreet, backstage pressure was brought on the law firm in Nixon's behalf by Donald Kendall, Pepsi's president, and Elmer Bobst, Warner-Lambert's board chairman. Shortly thereafter, the firm became Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, Alexander and Mitchell.

Both Pepsi-Cola and Warner-Lambert, in their 1968 reports to stockholders, complained about the controls that President Johnson has imposed upon overseas investments. These are necessary to fight French President Charles de Gaulle's raid on U.S. gold reserves.

"These controls," declared the Pepsi report, "can only aggravate the U.S. balance payment problem long range; therefore it is our hope that all possible steps will be taken to lift them at an early date." Warner-Lambert also expressed the hope that the controls would be "temporary."

SYLVIA PORTER 'Debt Pooling' Lure

"Let us consolidate and arrange to pay all your bills, with one low payment you can afford."

"Consolidate your debts. Reduce your monthly payments by 50 per cent or more."

Tempting? Sure, if you're among America's families overladen with monthly installment debts and unable to keep up with the regular payments which you have pledged to make. The lures also are tempting if you're among the poor and ill-educated who don't suspect what may be behind them.

The name of the game may be "debt adjusting," "debt pooling," "debt lumping," "debt liquidation," etc. But the rules are the same for each:

You, the financially overburdened family or individual, agree to make regular payments to a "debt adjuster" who, in turn, agrees to distribute this lump sum among your various creditors each week or each month. The sum you arrange to pay the debt adjuster probably will be less than the total you had been paying... because the adjuster will try to persuade your creditors to stretch out the period over which your debts will be paid. But, in addition, you are expected to pay the adjuster a fee for his services, and this fee can range as high as 10 to 35 per cent of your total debt.

And that's the rub. For when you add up your total obligations, you discover that you're deeper in debt than you were before you consolidated your debts. What you've done is add one more debt to your existing pile.

To date, 24 states have passed laws banning debt pooling for profit. In 13 other states there are statutes aimed at regulating this practice by other means. In most cases the laws bar any individual or firm from earning money by charging a fee for simply distributing money received from you to your creditors.

Exempt from the state laws, of course, are a variety of organizations offering financial counseling and/or debt management services without charging a fee for these services. But the practice of debt pooling for profit continues in states which have no regulations against it. And even in the states which have laws, out-of-state debt adjusters continue to do business by mail or telephone solicitation.

In one case, a New Jersey woman who had signed up for a debt-pooling arrangement involving a $50 weekly payment found, when her creditors began telephoning her four weeks later, that only a total of $35 had been paid to one creditor. In other cases, creditors refuse to go along with the payment plan set up by the debt adjuster because they are asked to accept smaller payments. Or the debtors themselves may find the payment schedules just as unbearable as their former obligations were. But there are cases in which the debt adjusters simply have absconded with the money which has been turned over to them without paying a cent to any creditors.

The fact must be underlined that today there are a large number of honest, legitimate credit counseling services offered through banks, credit unions, credit bureaus and other institutions -- without charge.

Frequently, too, family welfare agencies and legal aid societies will provide assistance to a debtor seeking help.

In short, there is NO need for anybody to pay a commercial debt adjuster one penny to distribute money among his creditors.

Yet, despite the cold significance of the above sentence, this is SEVENTH on the list of the top 10 consumer rackets compiled by the National Better Business Bureau in New York.

Be forewarned: If you are over your head in debt, do not pay a debt adjuster to handle your creditors. Deal only with legitimate, non-profit agencies.

MASON DENISON Third Party Candidacy Not New

HARRISBURG — Contrary to what is perhaps popular belief on the part of many a Keystone State voter, the so-called "third party" candidacy of former Alabama Governor George C. Wallace is nothing new to the presidential balloting scene in Pennsylvania.

That is, it is not "new" from the standpoint of voters of the Keystone State enjoying a choice of more than two presidential candidates.

Unquestionably the popular belief has been, and seems to persist today, that when you go to the presidential polls you vote for one of two candidates -- either the Republican hopeful or the Democratic aspirant.

This quite definitely has not been the case, insofar as Pennsylvania is concerned, for nearly the past hundred years.

The fact is that in every election since 1868 Pennsylvania's voters have indeed had presidential choices other than just Democratic and Republican candidates.

By and large this has gone by the wayside however, primarily because of the lack of public lustre or activity insofar as the "also rans" have been concerned.

This year of course has proven a bit of an exception on this point from the standpoint of acclaim, publicity and notoriety. Mr. Wallace has generated not only in this state but throughout the nation as a whole.

Hence the view of many a Keystone State voter that the Wallace venture in this state is something new. Actually just the opposite is true, as illustrated by the point already stressed that for the past century more than two presidential candidates have abounded on the Pennsylvania ballot.

In most instances, however, those who have aspired to the White House on the Pennsylvania ballot have been lost in the backwash; fundamentally they have not enjoyed the publicity spread currently enjoyed by Mr. Wallace, the candidate of the American Independent Party.

For example, did you know that Farrell Dobbs was on the Pennsylvania presidential ballot in 1967? Probably not but in that election at least 2678 Pennsylvanians did know about it -- or at least that number voted for him (out of 4,996,238 votes cast that year for Messrs. Kennedy and Nixon).

Perhaps one of the more widely known "third party" presidential aspirants on the Pennsylvania ballot (and nationally) over the years -- with a notoriety similar to that generated today by and for Mr. Wallace -- was the candidacy of Norman Thomas, Socialist Party hopeful of the 1930's and 1940's (he was a candidate six times). He finally threw in the sponge after Democrat Harry S. Truman in 1948 became curator of the presidential rose garden.

In fact if you go back to 1789 when the first presidential election was staged and romp through the 44 that have occurred since then, you will find that in only ten instances have there been only two presidential candidates on the ballot in Pennsylvania!

In all other instances, with two exceptions, there have been more than two presidential aspirants on the Keystone State ballot.

The "two exceptions" just referred to occurred when there was only one presidential candidate on the Pennsylvania ballot -- back in 1789 when George Washington was the only one running (needless to say he made the grade; Pennsylvania provided 5930 votes that year) and again in 1792.

That was the last time there was only one presidential aspirant on the ballot in Pennsylvania but believe it or not there was one election -- that of 1800 -- in which Pennsylvania's voters never had the chance to express by popular vote their choice for President!

That was the year of the great foul-up -- which isn't destined to happen this year, Pennsylvanians November 5 will have five presidential hopefuls to choose from.

300 Attend Annual Stockholders Meeting

Approximately 300 members and their guests attended the Annual Stockholders Meeting of the Federal Land Bank Association of Meadville and Meadville Production Credit Association held last week at the Meadville Senior High School.

Thomas F. Crawford, manager, reported on the progress of the two Associations, providing long and short term credit as a farm cooperative, serving Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Warren, Forest and Venango counties. The manager reported that the local Associations have nearly 12 million dollars in loans outstanding. Meadville Production Credit has had an increase of $1,600,000.00 in loans outstanding since a year ago. Long term lending through the Federal Land Bank Association has shown a favorable increase in volume of $800,000.00 over one year ago. With an over-all increase in volume of $2,200,000.00, Crawford stressed the service that these two Farm Credit Co-ops are rendering to agriculture in meeting the demands placed upon it for credit to finance expanding dairy, beef and fruit operations in this area. The annual election for directors for 3 year terms was conducted. Russell R. Walker of Edinboro, Pa. and Vere O. Woods of R.D. 1, Edinboro, Pa. were re-elected as directors to serve on the Federal Land Bank Association board. J. Leon Kean of R.D. 3, Franklin, Pa. and Milford J. Brown of R.D. 2, Jamestown, Pa. was elected to the Meadville Production Credit Association board.

Harold Ott, Erie County Assistant County Agent, presented Farm Credit awards to the 4-H Record Book winners. Commenting briefly on the Association's progress and business was John Coffindaffer, Regional Representative of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore and the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank.

The Rev. C. Harry Kehm of the Grace Reformed Church of Allentown, Pa. was guest speaker and his humorous presentation was enjoyed by all.

Group singing was led by K. K. Robertson accompanied by Mrs. Norman R. Rough at the piano.

Prizes were awarded following the entertainment.

Stocks Up Slightly; Trading Moderate

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a small gain in moderately active trading Monday in a session which was regarded as another step in the consolidation process following the big September advance.

Prices were higher on balance from the start, although early softness in blue chips depressed averages in the morning and there was no vigorous leadership to ignite a buying rush.

Volume was 11.98 million shares, a little below Friday's total of 12.65 million shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended with a trivial gain of .37 at 849.96 after showing an early loss of about a point.

Considerable caution still remained in Wall Street even though the economic news remained fairly bullish. This included news that General Motors reported a substantial gain in sales for early October over the like period a year ago, Chrysler's upping of its forecast of industry auto sales to a record 9.4 million cars and a rise in the price of lead, a further indication of the inflationary trend.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.3 to 354.8 with industrials up .7, rails up 2.0 and utilities up .1.

Of 1,580 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 731 advanced and 606 declined. New highs for the year totaled 93 and new lows 12.

Of the 15 most-active stocks, gains and losses were even at seven each and Atlas Corp. was unchanged at 8.

American Motors, after a slow start, went to the top of the most-active list, scoring a gain of 1 1/4 at 14 1/4 on 208,300 shares.

Prices were mixed on the American Stock Exchange where an early advance lost its steam. Volume was 5.39 million shares compared with 5.73 million Friday. Losses outnumbered gains but the exchange's index rose 6 cents to $30.68.

School Integration Poses Big Problem in Big Cities

HARRISBURG (AP) — As white residents of South Philadelphia marched for "White Power" Monday the issue of school desegregation continued to occupy educators, legislators, and human relations experts.

The question is this: will the problem of achieving racial balance in large metropolitan areas compel the involvement of the predominantly white suburbs, even to the point of busing white suburban pupils to city schools and black city pupils to the suburbs?

The suggestion prompted State Sen. Clarence D. Bell, a Republican from Delaware County, to comment: "The Delaware County legislators are dedicated to smashing any attempt by Philadelphia to invade our school system, whether by the tax grab, through school busing, or direct annexation."

"We want cooperation," Bell said in an interview. "But we don't want to be hit over the head. We're not racists. Many Negro families have moved to Delaware County to get away from the Philadelphia school system."

Sen. Bell said publicized proposals to desegregate schools on a regional basis "will swing the election in favor of the Republicans in Pennsylvania." Suburban voters, he said, will turn to the GOP because of the school issue.

Bell's remarks were addressed to a report that Richardson

Dilworth, president of the Philadelphia Board of Education, told the state Human Relations Commission that the only solution to school desegregation, at least in the Philadelphia area, would have to be a regional one.

Actually, according to three persons who attended the so-called "informal session" at which Dilworth was supposed to have made regional consolidation of school systems an imperative matter, the subject did not receive significant emphasis.

The meeting, held at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel in Philadelphia on Oct. 1, had to do with Philadelphia's request for another extension of time given it by the Human Relations Commission as one of 17 districts required to submit school desegregation plans.

According to one person who was there, when Dilworth asked to speak off the record, it was to characterize the kind of opposition the board has received from within the city whenever it has attempted to introduce a desegregation plan.

"He simply discussed the problem," said Milo Manly, deputy director of the Human Relations Commission. "He said it was impossible to discuss the problem with them (meaning white residents of the northeast section of Philadelphia) until things could cool down."

Regionalism was not the main topic, Manly said.

But another person who attended the meeting, however, indicated Monday that, short of outright "invasions," as Sen. Bell would put it, the thinking of the Philadelphia school board lies in the direction of regionalism.

The board, said Robert Washburn, influential director of its Office of Integration and Intergroup Relations, has "no plan for how the schools can be desegregated." This is why it has requested extension upon extension from the Human Relations Commission, he said.

The rumor that Philadelphia officially endorses regional consolidation probably arose, Blackburn said, as an interpretation of sentences in a tentative report submitted by the board to the commission.

Entitled "Desegregation Plan for Philadelphia Public Schools," the report, according to Blackburn, "asks the state to use whatever civil, legal, legislative means it has to break down the barriers to achieving desegregation in Philadelphia."

"Ultimately," Blackburn explained, "the state will have to provide the leadership. If the State Supreme Court says you can't operate de facto segregated schools, the Department of Public Instruction should be enjoined, since they run the schools. Education is a state responsibility."

"And this is not going to come through the legislature, not through moral exhortation, which has been the level of the discussion up to now."

"We say there are certain things we can do alone — physical and curricular changes — other things we've got to do with city and state."

These "other things," Blackburn said, include raising more money for education and "taking a look at the problem on a regional basis."

He stressed a section of the report that said: "housing, job, and the schools must be integrated," not just the schools. Thus, Blackburn agreed, the board's view squares somewhat with that of Gov. Shafer, who two weeks ago said he thought open housing, not busing black children to white schools, was the answer to integration.

"And the Human Relations Commission must provide the leadership," Blackburn concluded.

In another interview, Richard Anliot, director of education for the Human Relations Commission, said regional solutions to desegregation "has been suggested by a committee of representatives from the 17 districts asked to submit desegregation plans."

Neither Anliot, nor Manly, however, would commit the commission to any specific formula for racial balance.

"I would hate to say the only solution is a regional one," Anliot said. "Regionalism becomes more of a question when you approach the problem in a large metropolitan area."

GOP Contender For Congress Is Injured

Aides to John V. Edwards are planning an intensive wind-up of his campaign for Congress, temporarily interrupted by the absence of Edwards, injured in an accident early Saturday morning.

The GOP contender for Congress, confined to his home indefinitely, is recovering from facial injuries suffered in the one-car accident on Route 97 near Union City, after an 18-hour day of campaigning in Erie, Crawford and Mercer counties. His injuries included a severe gash above the right eye which required 31 stitches.

At the time of the mishap, Edwards, traveling alone, was en route from the Universal-Cyclops plant in Titusville, where he had been campaigning at company gates, meeting employees. Early Friday morning he was greeting workers at Erie Technological plant in Erie.

State police of the Corry substation said the Edwards car, demolished by the impact, went off the road and hit a bridge abutment where three persons had lost their lives recently. Police said Edwards was blinded by lights of an oncoming vehicle as he was attempting to bring his car back onto the highway. The candidate was tossed against the windshield by the impact.

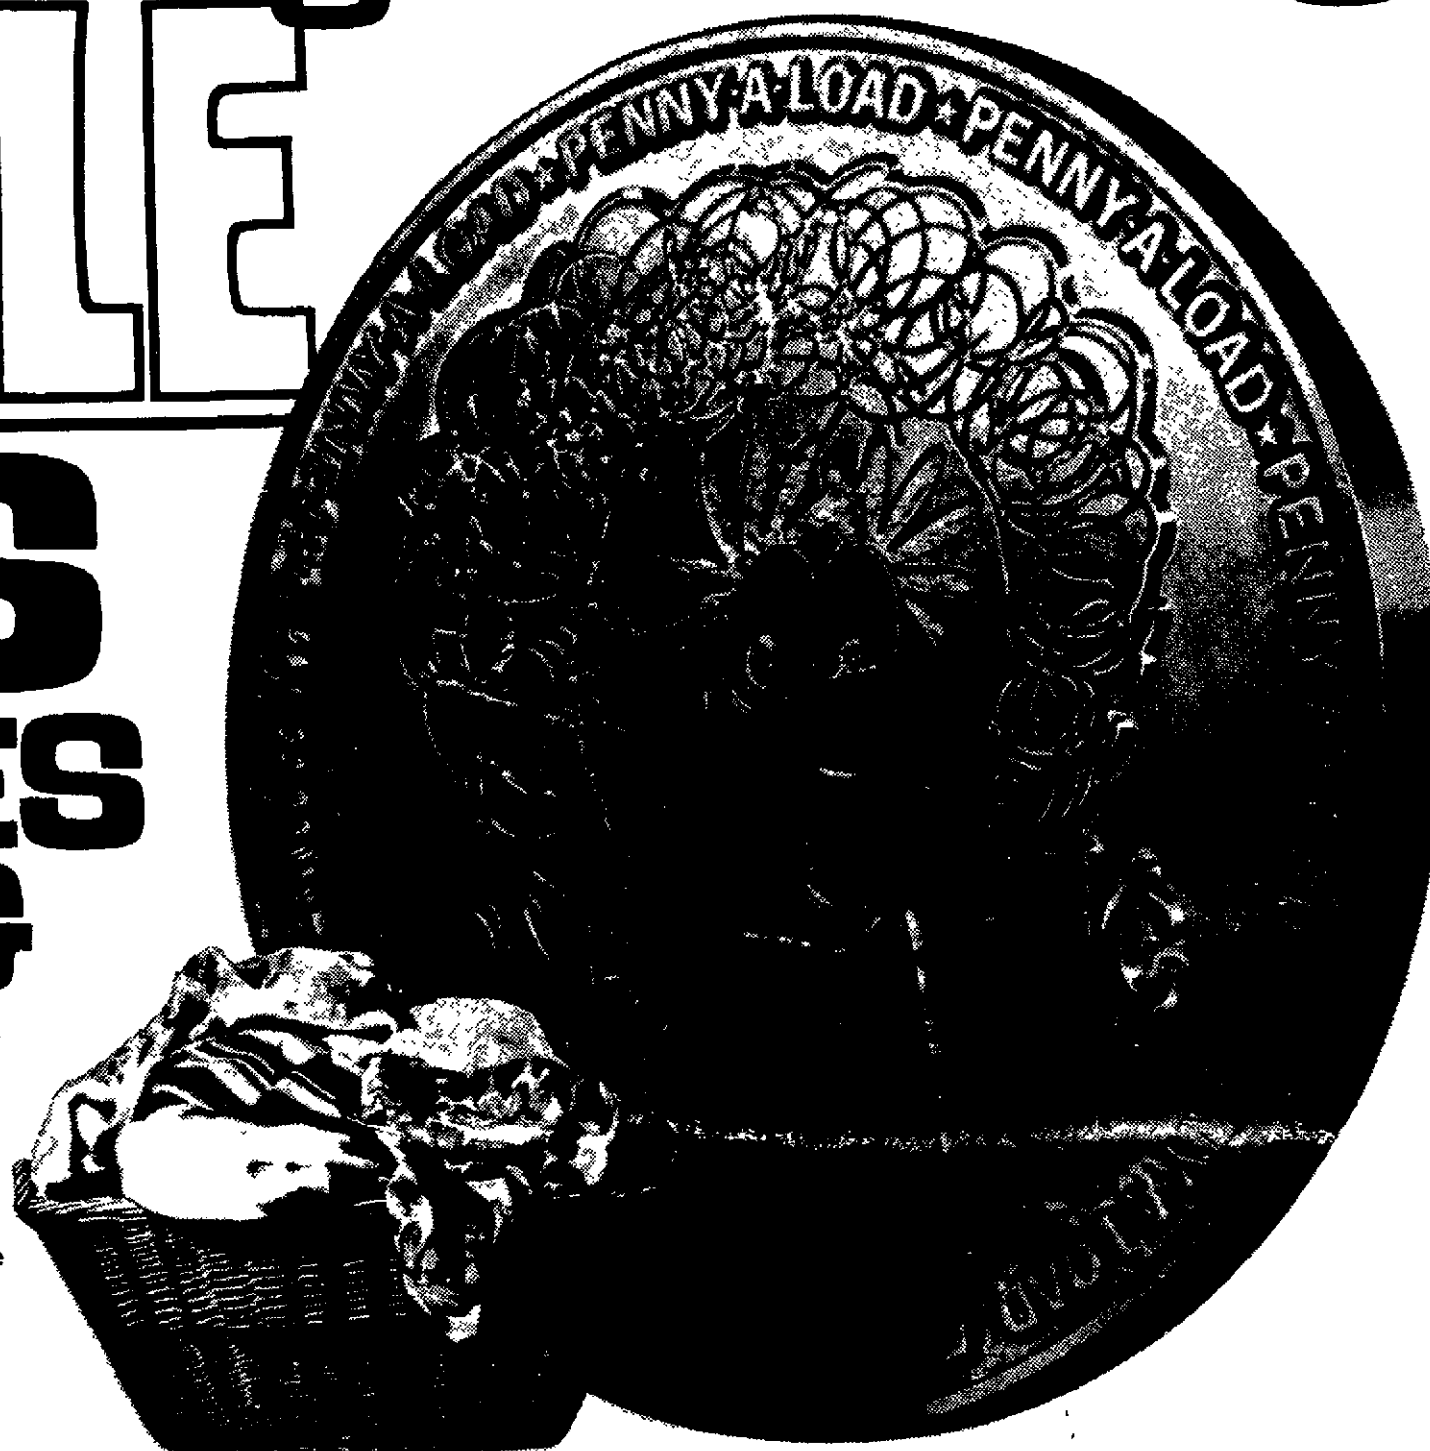

Edwards was treated at Union City Hospital and released.

Furniture Talk

by Carl Bartsch

"COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE"

PLAIN OR FANCY, a few years ago, meant choosing between modern or period furnishings. The modern of the day was crisply functional, set in surroundings that came close to being stark. There was beauty of line and color, but little warmth.
Cleanliness of line and functional beauty are still integral parts of modern and contemporary furnishings, but there has been a subtle introduction of warmth and richness. It comes from greater ornamentation, increasing use of detail accents in the design, along with the interplay of wood and metal and fabric textures.
Simplicity still finds a great deal of favor with many homeowners, but it is a virtue common to French Provincial, for instance, as much as contemporary furnishings. "Plain or Fancy" can mean anything in today's interior decoration, for the modern room may house a collection of artifacts, a multi-hued rug, an interior garden, even an occasional antique. And the traditional room might be the one which is regally simple.
The point is, there are no hard-and-fast rules today. You can enjoy the kind of furnishings you like, plain or fancy! And you can be sure, whatever your preference, you'll find a handsome selection in our display. Free decorating service, too.

Humane Society Offers Lots of Dogs for Adoption

HONEY BEAR IS DOOMED

Honey Bear, a border collie type male, will be put to sleep this week if a home is not found for him. Honey Bear loves children and would make a good pet, but his time has run out. If no one wants him, the Humane Society will no longer be able to keep him.

The Warren County Humane Society is pleading for those who love animals or know someone who needs a pet to provide homes for a number of dogs

WSH Receives Merit Citation

The Warren State Hospital Library has again received a citation of merit among "special" libraries of the state for its contribution to the National Library Week program, Librarian Gilberta Bartoo has been informed.

The honor was conferred because of activities carried on this year at the Warren State Hospital in connection with its Patients' Library.

The award was made at the general business meeting of the Pennsylvania Library Association in Philadelphia, Friday, October 11, 1968.

A similar award was received by the Warren State Hospital Library in 1966, on the occasion of the first National Library Week poster contest for patients.

ready for adoption. The telephone number is 726-1961.

—Otto, an extremely friendly brown hound-type male with short hair and long legs.

—Lilly Belle, a real beauty, Greyhound type female, white with brown markings.

—Queenie, a beautiful female collie who reminds everyone of Lassie. Queenie is a year old and loves children.

—Bonnie, a small, long-haired female, black and white terrier type, very friendly and alert.

—Pal, shiny black Cocker Spaniel type male.

—Laddie, another collie pup, brown and white male, about three months old.

—Lost Hound, a tri-colored male found in the Kinzua area, about one year old.

The average person breathes in 35 pounds of air each day, six times as much as the food and drink he consumes.

Ex-GI, Policeman Hurt Following Corry Break-in

CORRY — A 23-year-old Columbus ex-serviceman and a city police officer were treated at Corry Memorial Hospital last Thursday after police had to subdue the veteran following a window-breaking incident at Citizens Corry Office of the Marine Bank.

The Columbus man, reportedly a mentally disturbed veteran with a service-connected problem, was taken into custody by police at the Lorraine Hotel where he ran after breaking two windows of the bank with his fist.

Police, upon finding the man with a badly cut arm, asked him to go to the hospital for treatment. They said he started toward the door then changed his mind about going to the hospital. The two officers had to subdue him to get him in the cruiser.

At the hospital he was treated for a laceration of the forearm and abrasions to the right hand. Officer E. R. Peterson, one of the arresting officers, was treated for a possible fracture of a rib, sustained during the scuffle.

The serviceman stated he was discharged from the service in November and had been seeking help. He said he had been hospitalized twice for his mental problems.

Texas' Randy Matson And Jim Hines Lead American Olympic Effort For Gold Medals

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Randy Matson, the mammoth shot put king from Pampa, Tex., and sprinter Jim Hines of Texas Southern won America's first gold medals as United States track and field strength asserted itself at the Olympic Games Monday.

Americans captured two other medals with George Woods of Los Angeles taking the silver in the shot put behind Matson and Charlie Green of Seattle finishing third for the bronze behind Hines in the 100-meter dash.

Hines put on a spectacular finish and was timed in 9.9 seconds for the 100, shattering the Olympic record and tying the pending world mark. Earlier, the undefeated United States basketball team won its second game with Spencer Haywood, an unheralded 19-year-old collegian, pacing a 93-36 romp over Senegal.

Discus man Jay Silverster and three lady sprinters—Wynona Tyus, Barbara Ferrell and Margaret Bailey—all starred in preliminary tests in their specialties. Matson heaved the 16-pound ball 67 feet, 4 1/4 inches and won the shot put better than a foot over teammate Woods.

The 6-foot-6 1/2, 265-pound gina, who finished second to America's Dallas Long at Tokyo four years ago, had shattered the Olympic record with a qualifying heave of 67-10 1/4 Sunday. He holds the world record at 71-5 1/4.

Woods, a 300-pounder, was second with a toss of 66 feet, 1/4 inch. Russia's Eduard Guschin took the bronze medal with 65-11, accounting for his country's first medal of the Games.

Dave Maggard of Mountain View, Calif., America's other shot put qualifier, finished fifth with 63-9.

Hines thrilled a crowd of 65,000 packed into the Olympic Stadium with his spectacular performance. He beat Lennox Miller, a Southern California student from Jamaica, who was second, and Greene.

Hines, Greene and Ronnie Ray Smith of San Jose, Calif., all have marks of 9.9 up for recognition in the event. The Olympic 100 carries with it, even if unofficially, title of the world's fastest human.

Shortly after Matson had given the United States its first gold medal, Hines and Greene, who both had won their semifinal heats, went after the 100 crown. After one false start, the field got off with Green apparently holding a slight lead at 40 meters.

Then Hines put on a tremendous burst of speed and won by at least one meter over Miller.

After Hines passed the finish line, he jogged back and hugged Greene in joy. The two are longtime friends and rivals. Then he wandered jubilantly in front of the stands, waving to the crowd as the spectators roared their approval.

Bob Hayes won the 100 in 1964 at Tokyo with a 10.0. He then signed a professional football contract and has starred as a flanker with the Dallas Cowboys.

Angela Nemeth of Hungary won the gold medal in the women's javelin with a toss of 168 feet, 1/2 inch. Rumania's Mihaela Penes took the silver medal and Eva Janko of Austria was the bronze winner.

In the women's long jump, Viorica Viscopeanu took the gold medal with a world's record leap of 22 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

The old mark was 22-3 1/4 held by England's Mary Rand. That was also the Olympic record.

Second was Sheila Sherwood of Great Britain and Tatjana Talyshcheva of Russia was third. Vladimir Golubnichy of Russia won the 20-kilometer walk in near darkness, beating loudly cheered Jose Pedraza of Mexico by eight meters in the day's final track and field event. Nikolay Smaga of Russia was third.

Barbara Friedrich of Spring Heights, N.J., finished ninth in the women's javelin with 175-4, one foot better than Ranae Bair of Diego who was 11th.

Martha Watson of Long Beach, Calif., did 20-4 in the long jump for 10th place while Willie White of Chicago finished 11th with 19-11 1/2.

Rudy Halaiza of Riverside, Calif., finished fourth in the walk, crossing the line 57 seconds after Smaga.

In the final gold medal event of the day, Japan's Yoshinobu Miyake won the featherweight contest in weightlifting with a total lift of 865 pounds. His younger brother, Yoshiyuki, won the bronze medal while second place went to Dito Zhandze of Russia.

In boxing, David Vasquez of New York got the U.S. squad off to a winning start by outpointing Filippo Grasso of Italy. The judges awarded Vasquez the match 3-2.

The U.S. basketball squad, never beaten since the game was added to the Olympic program in 1932, buried Senegal 93-36 for its second victory in two days. Haywood, a 6-foot-8 sophomore at Detroit University, popped in 16 points and grabbed 19 rebounds. He had scored 14 in Sunday's 81-46 rout of Spain.

Silvester, a 245-pound insurance salesman from Smithfield, Utah, broke the Olympic discus record with an opening throw of 207 feet, 9 1/2 inches to lead three U.S. qualifiers into Tuesday's finals. Silvester, 31, is the world record holder in the event and has a mark of 224.5 pending.

At Center, the 32-year-old defender who is going after an unprecedented fourth gold medal in the event, set the old Olympic record of 200-1 1/2 four years ago at Tokyo. Monday, the 280-pounder from West Islip, N.Y., did 194-9, sixth best among the 12 qualifiers.

Gary Carlsen of Los Angeles was third, behind Silvester and West Germany's Manfred Losch, with a toss of 198-0 1/2.

PIRATES HIT HARD

NL Expansion Clubs Hold Player Draft In Montreal

MONTREAL (AP) — You could say it was a housecleaning, or overhauling—or possibly a move to "Break up the Pirates."

All those phrases seemed to fit at the National League expansion draft here Monday.

The Pittsburgh Pirates lost six players to San Diego and Montreal—and four of the players were veterans.

Montreal grabbed off veteran utility player Manny Mota, first baseman Donn Clendenon and shortstop Maury Willis, while San Diego took right-handed pitcher Al McBean, minor league pitcher Dave Roberts and a little-known catcher, Ron Slocum.

Mota batted over .300 in 1966 and 1967 while platooning in centerfield with Matty Alou, but slipped to .281 in 111 games this year. He was used sparingly when Alou started to hit late in the season.

Willis fell into disfavor with the Pirates when he got into a squabble over taking a late-season physical examination, while Clendenon's future with Pittsburgh dimmed considerably when he set a league record by striking out 163 times.

Willis, who threatened to retire before joining an expansion team, batted .278 and stole 51 bases. Clendenon led Pittsburgh batters with 87 RBI, while hitting .257.

McBean started for Pittsburgh early in the season, but saw limited service late in the season.

Brown said his late-season run-in with Willis had nothing to do with letting the 36-year-old player go.

"We feel we have several young players that we don't want to lose," said Brown.

Willis was drafted on the third round, Mota on the first, Clendenon on the second, Roberts on the fourth, McBean on the fifth and Slocum on the sixth.

Southern California Is Tops In AP College Poll

Associated Press Sports Writer Southern California, led by O. J. Simpson's dancing feet, leaped into first place and kicked out Purdue Monday in The Associated Press' major college football poll.

Simpson raced for three touchdowns Saturday as the Trojans edged tough Stanford, 27-24, while Purdue, No. 1 last week, fell victim to oncoming Ohio State, 13-0.

The Buckeyes' upset of Leroy Keyes and Co. shot their stock from fourth to second place, Purdue, meanwhile, skidded to fifth.

Southern California amassed 23 of 41 possible first-place votes

Kids Pick 'Em Best in TMO Contest

It was Kiddies Day in the Times-Mirror and Observer football contest this week as all three places went to the youngsters. Susan Haumesser, 15 years old, took first while twelve-year-old Randy Prosen placed second and two-year-old Tommy Kurch captured the third spot.

The T-M-O contest was a hard one for judges to rule upon this week. However, nothing could be as disastrous to a sports department as the Pittsburgh Press football contest for last week.

The weekly prize of $500 was spread thinly after last week's games. The Press contest of 20 picks round 308 entries picking all 20 right splitting the money up to around $1.65 per winner.

NBA Starts New Year On Tuesday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The National Basketball Association opens its 23rd session Tuesday night with five new coaches, two new teams and one major rule change. But as far as figures go, the magic number is still 13.

That's the uniform number Wilt Chamberlain will be wearing for the Los Angeles Lakers. Chamberlain, the league's Most Valuable Player in 1967, was traded by the Philadelphia 76ers to the Lakers for guard Archie Clark, forward Jerry Chambers and center Darrell Imhoff.

The deal gave the Lakers what many consider to be the most powerful team in NBA history—battered by the All-Star trio of Chamberlain, guard Jerry West and forward Elgin Baylor.

While the Lakers figure to take the Western Division crown, the 76ers will probably have to battle off the New York Knicks and Boston Celtics if they are to repeat as Eastern Division kings.

Joining the NBA are two expansion teams—Milwaukee and Phoenix—and five new coaches. They are Ramsey (Philadelphia); Dick Motta (Chicago); Larry Costello (Milwaukee); George Lee (San Francisco) and John Kerr (Phoenix).

The major rule change is that only one 20-second injury timeout for each half will be allowed each team.

Seven entries had fifteen of the twenty right this week and judges were forced to rely on the tie breaker to decide the winner. Susan got first place as she was the only one of the seven to pick the tie breaker right (Denver won).

Susan's soul high school mistake was the Corry-Titusville upset. She also missed the Pro tie (Buffalo-Miami) and a trio of college games; Pitt-Syracuse, Texas Tech-Texas A&M, and Duke-Virginia. Her tie breaker score was Denver 37, New York 21. Although the final score was Denver 21, New York 13, and she was off the score by 24 points, she was the only one to pick the Broncos.

Susan is a sophomore in Sheffield high school and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Haumesser residing at 413 Radaker st. in Sheffield. Second place Randy attends school at Beatty in the seventh grade and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Prosen of 686 Kinzua Road.

Randy missed the same high school game as Susan and also missed the tie along with the Green Bay-Los Angeles contest. His two college misses were Penn State-UCLA and Duke-Virginia.

In the tie breaker he guessed Denver 20 and New York 32, 20 points off the original score even though he didn't pick the winner.

Little Tommy missed a pair of high school games Westfield-Eisenhower and Titusville-Corry. He also missed the tie along with the San Diego-Oakland clash. His only college miss was the Navy-Air Force game.

Tommy picked the tie breaker Denver 21, New York 35, 22 points off along with Norman T. Cable who picked Denver 17, New York 31. Because Tommy hit the Denver score right on the head, he was awarded the third place over Cable.

Start Questionable

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Quarterback Bart Starr was listed Monday as a questionable starter for the Green Bay Packers in their National Football League game Sunday at Detroit with the Lions.

A Packer spokesman said doctors have diagnosed Starr's injury as a pulled muscle in his right bicep.

Starr hurt his throwing arm while warming up before the start of Sunday's game with the Los Angeles Rams.

Fourteen entries picked all the college games right while only one entry picked the high school games correctly. One unbelievable pick was the Buffalo-Miami tie. One football entry checked both lines for the Bills-Dolphins game making the tie pick the first one this season. This week the T-M-O contest is number five leaving only three more to go.

Bobby Hull Back At Last Minute

CHICAGO (AP) — Here's how superstar Bobby Hull ended his 79-hour retirement and played Sunday night for the Chicago Black Hawks:

A car with a police escort drove up to Chicago Stadium 15 minutes before the Hawks were to take the ice against the New York Rangers.

Hull stepped out and rushed to the dressing room.

The lineups were announced to the sell-out crowd at 7:33 p.m., and Hull's name was not mentioned.

Then the Hawks skated on the ice. Hull was the last of the 8 to appear. A roar shook the stadium. It lasted 50 seconds. The National Anthem was sung. The game began.

The undefeated Hawks whipped the Rangers 5-2. Hull scored his only goal with the score 4-2.

Hull announced his retirement after a salary squabble at noon last Thursday. He missed the Hawks' National Hockey League opener Friday night which they won 4-3 from St. Louis.

Hull said he was in telephone contact with Hawks' President Bill Wirtz and General Manager Tommy Ivan Sunday afternoon and signed about 7 p.m., adding: "I'm very, very happy with the final settlement."

Bobby reportedly didn't get quite the $100,000 he was seeking. The report is that the taxes on the amount he got will be paid by the Hawks, making the net worth of the one-year pact more than if he had been handed the $100,000.

Hawk Coach Billy Reay said he never sat in on negotiations but estimated that Hull signed for about $400 a day. Since the season lasts virtually six months, this would peg Hull's salary at around $72,000.

1 ♣ 1 ♠ Pass Pass
2 ♠ 2 ♠ 3 ♥ Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠
South lacked by a good bit the requirements to make a free bid of two hearts after East had overcalled North's one club opening with one spade. North was sufficiently well-heeled, however, to re-open the proceedings with a take-out double

East erected a mild pre-emptive barricade by re-bidding his spades, but South was not to be shut out of the delayed opportunity to speak, and he freely bid three hearts. Altho South's previous pass had limited the strength of his hand, North had enough in reserve to carry on to game

West opened the four of spades and East cashed the first two tricks in that suit. A brief examination of the dummy revealed that there was virtually no hope of winning any further tricks in the side suits. East's void in spades did suggest, however, that West's trump holding might prove to be productive. In an effort to attack declarer's trump suit for his partner, East continued with a third round of spades, even tho this presented South with a ruff and discard

Declarer trumped in his hand to preserve North's spade holding and West discarded a club. The king of hearts was led, on which West played the ace and East showed out. The club return was taken in dummy and South ruffed himself in on the club continuation

A small heart was led next and, when West played low, North's nine was successfully finessed. The queen of hearts was cashed, and all that remained for declarer was to get back to his hand so that he might draw West's last trump. When he attempted to trump another club, however, West overruffed with the ten of hearts to score the setting trick

East's play of a third spade permitted his partner to discard a club early in the hand. Had East shifted to some other suit, West would have been obliged to follow suit twice as the declarer ruffed himself in with clubs, and the ten of hearts would have succumbed tamely to South's drawing of trumps

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.
FOR TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1968
ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Mentally catalogue all important details as you hurry through what should be an extremely active day. Be sure to channel activities constructively. Study new trends and re-evaluate your program accordingly.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — If "sitting out" developments in a situation, awaiting the decisions of others or a new assignment, don't idle; fill up the interim usefully. This is a day for ACTION.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Don't strive to acquire a "new image" by going off on tangents. Impulsiveness, hasty decisions could only set you back. Stress self-control and quiet planning.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Solar influences now stimulate your talents but, in your push forward, do not ride roughshod over others, nor drive yourself so hard that you make careless errors. Rewards for past efforts indicated.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Planetary influences promise some new opportunities for success, but some may be presented in "odd" form. Study well, and don't undertake anything which may tax your limitations or capacities to perform.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Emphasize teamwork now and lend a hand, in tight spots, to those who could use it. Be systematic, of course, but flexible, too, when necessary. A so-so day, which can be handled with clever management.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Don't jump on the bandwagon just because someone has a BIG idea and those about you enthuse. What is attractive to others may not be the thing for YOU. Consider carefully.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Good influences promise new means toward advancing your status. You should feel ready and willing to exercise your skills, to make the most of your intuition and originality.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Pick up loose ends as quickly as possible. Move forward smartly where the path is smooth, and take more pains where snags appear. Build from a solid foundation.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Saturn in good position. With the best use of your fine intellect and inspired planning, you can accomplish much for this day, and for the future.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — You should feel highly enthusiastic about the way things go now. Give immediate attention to "musts."

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Your innate graciousness is still a potent weapon, but it must be accompanied by efforts that are germane to the issues at hand. Keep a wary eye on personal affairs.

YOU BORN TODAY are an ambitious leader, efficient promoter, and a reasoner, you often reach success solely through your own efforts, but an assist from others is appreciated and you like to work with co-operative people. You are not always demonstrative, but you love deeply, and are normally steadfast, even if somewhat jealous. You are a powerful friend and, with your active disposition, can be an equally potent enemy. You can succeed in literature, politics, music, entertainment, education. ## How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1968 by The Chicago Tribune

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

WOMEN ATHLETES

We will never know the exact number of men who competed in the Olympics posed as women. But athletes of questionable gender have been common enough to warrant changing rules this year. In Mexico City, a medical commission determines the true sex of contestants entered in the women's events. Highly refined laboratory methods are used. Results will be kept confidential to preserve secrecy and to avoid embarrassment.

Tests to determine sex involve studying cells obtained from the inside of the mouth. The secretions are viewed under the microscope for sex chromatin granules (Barr bodies). Participants were tested immediately on entering the Olympic Village.

Some athletes are not to blame, because they do not know they are intersexed. Main offenders are male pseudo-hermaphrodites in whom the gonads and chromosomes are male, but whose external pelvic organs more closely resemble those of the female.

The athletic performance of women usually falls below that achieved by men. "Dora," pre-World War II Olympian, who sailed over the bar at 5 feet, 7 inches and broke the world high jump record, turned out to be a man. This individual was forced to pose as a girl for the honor of Hitler's Germany.

According to Dr. Merritt H. Stiles, writing in Modern Medicine, "Claire" winner of a bronze medal for the 100-meter race at Oslo in 1946, now answers to the name Pierre. Pierre is married and a father.

Another bronze medal recipient was Lea. Leon then entered the French air force. Erika Schnegger, champion skier, withdrew from last winter's Olympics competition because of difficulties proving total femininity. After several operations and months of hospitalization, Erika emerged as Erik.

Physical examinations of women became mandatory at the 1965 meeting of the International Federation of Amateur Athletes in Tokyo. Five failed at Budapest and several European athletes under suspicion did not appear. The former were reinstated following a more thorough examination, but one was later disqualified.

THE 'FLOATING' UTERUS

A reader writes: What can be done about a floating uterus?

REPLY

Kidneys, ribs, and swimmers float but the uterus doesn't. If you refer to an organ that is tipped or retroverted, treatment usually is not necessary unless the condition is causing discomfort or bleeding. The pessary offers temporary relief but surgery must be done for permanent relief. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on retrodisplacements of the uterus.

'PRICE OF PREGNANCY'

A reader writes: My mother claims that the price of every pregnancy is a tooth! I told her this is an old wives' tale, but she disagrees.

REPLY

There is a modicum of truth to this tale. During pregnancy alterations of acid secretions in the mouth hasten the enlargement of existing cavities. Prevention involves seeing the dentist during the early months of pregnancy and having all cavities filled.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You keep insisting that alcoholism is an illness. I know for a fact you are wrong. Alcoholism is no illness, it is hereditary. The family I married into is living proof.

I knew when I married Jim that he had a drinking problem but I didn't know he would take gin in a hot water bottle to the hospital when he had his gall bladder out. Jim's father has not drawn a sober breath since I met him 21 years ago. His mother has not uttered a coherent sentence in the last 15 years. Jim has three brothers and two sisters. The only one in the crowd who doesn't drink is a sister who is a religious nut and I think a few drinks might improve her personality a lot.

I won't go into uncles and aunts, but at every family wedding or birthday party all they do is drink. Nobody eats. They have to call the fire department to come get the food because they hate to throw it out.

This bunch is living proof that alcoholism is hereditary. It's not possible that everybody in Jim's family caught the same illness. I hope you will be big enough to admit you are wrong and I'm right. — DON'T TOUCH THE STUFF MYSELF

DEAR STUFF: The experts agree that a TENDENCY toward alcoholism may be hereditary, but alcoholism is not inherited like crooked teeth or loving-eup ears. It so happens that your husband's clan is loaded with emotional problems and they all chose the same escape hatch — booze.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A bouquet of onions to you for the advice you gave to that poor kid who had a baby out of wedlock and asked if it would be all right to get married in a white wedding gown and have her 3-year-old daughter as a flower girl. Just because Bella made a little mistake is no reason she should pay for it for the rest of her life, is it? Why should she hide her head in the sand like an ostrich? Everyone knows what happened. Bella takes her child everywhere and calls herself Miss Jones. I think this takes a lot of courage, and she is to be admired.

Now that Bella has a chance to marry a nice fellow, why should she have the dream of her life spoiled? This unfortunate girl has always wanted a lovely white wedding, with orange blossoms and everything. You were mean to say no and spoil a young maiden's dream. — A CLOSE FRIEND

DEAR CLOSE: A girl who has had a child out of wedlock is no maiden — so forget about "spoiling her dream." If she allows her child to be the flower girl at her wedding she will be the subject of richly deserved ridicule. I hope somebody can talk her into wearing a pink silk suit — in the pastor's study.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Niemann-Hall Nuptial Vows Exchanged In Tidioute Church

The First Methodist Church in Tidioute was the setting for the candlelight nuptial service which united in marriage Susan Niemann and Alton Z. Hall Jr. on Friday evening, October 11, at 7:30. The Rev. George Campbell, pastor, read the double ring rites in the presence of one hundred and twenty-five guests.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Niemann of 259 Main street, Tidioute, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Alton Z. Hall of East Hickory, and the late Mr. Hall.

Adorning the altar were baskets of mums and potted palms, and wedding music was provided by Mrs. Charlotte Rosequist at the organ, and Mrs. Linda Reed, vocalist.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride approached the altar in a long gown of imported silk organza with bodice and long sleeves of Chantilly lace edged with seed pearls. An organza band defined the empire waistline with a cluster of rose buds at the back. Her bouffant a-line skirt swept into the graceful folds of a full chapel train. A mantilla of organza had a wide border of the Chantilly lace and she carried a triangular cascade of white gladioli and ivy.

The matron of honor Mrs. Kay Serafini, sister of the bride, was in gold velvet with matching Dior bow headdress. Costumed similarly, but in emerald green, were bridesmaids Mrs. Linda Anderson, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Roberta Knight.

The best man was Edward Foreman, and ushers were William Snavely and Kenneth Squires.

The mother of the bride, was in a blue print matte jersey with matching accessories, and the mother of the groom chose a costume of turquois and mocha brocade with brown accessories. Both had corsages of white mums. Mrs. Howard Christensen, grandmother of the bride, was also remembered with a white mum corsage.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by one hundred and twenty-five guests. Aides were Mrs. Judy Licht, Mrs. Nancy Eck, Mrs. Mildred Hall. For traveling on a wedding trip to the New England States, the new Mrs. Hall wore a red knit suit with brown accessories.

The bride is a Tidioute High School graduate, and is employed at the National Forge. The groom is a graduate of Hickory High School and is employed at the Hickory station of the United Natural Gas Company.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Mrs. Roberta Knight, Mrs. Linda Anderson, Mrs. Mildred Hall and Mrs. Nancy Eck.

Out of town guests attended from Aliquippa, Warren, Clarendon, Dagus Mines, Youngsville, Titusville, Bradford, Tionesta, East Hickory, Endeavor, Rouseville; and Virginia Beach, Va.

Absentee Ballot Topic At LWV Meetings This Week

The absentee ballot — who needs it? Shouldn't it be legal to vote even if Election Day falls while the family is away on vacation? These are two queries among several which the League of Women Voters will consider this week. The second set of fall discussion units will take place tonight at 8 o'clock and Thursday morning at 9:30 at the YWCA.

Pennsylvania has unique election laws, even peculiar, the League has learned through many years of study. In some years the 7,000 members in our state have arrived at a consensus for special reforms. This week will bring another such opportunity. Persuading the legislators to bring about reforms comes only after study and agreement among the local Leagues.

Mrs. Maxwell Rhodes, of Youngsville, is the resource chairman for the Election Laws study. Discussion leaders will be Mrs. David Smith, for tonight, and Mrs. Fred Emhardt, Thursday morning. Any interested women in the area are invited to attend. A call to Mrs. Wayne Mann at 757-8187 will provide transportation. Mrs. Mann will again conduct a ten-minute program for new and prospective members before each meeting.

League members across the state also will consider the question of whether 18-year-olds should be allowed to vote. The pros and cons on this topic were published in the Warren Area group's newsletter Saturday. Each member was mailed with her copy of the Warren Voter a new publication on absentee voting by the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania.

If the Shoe Fits...
James R. Valone

Footsaver Education

CAN YOU BE SURE THAT A SHOE FITS BY DETERMINING THE POSITION OF THE BIG TOE?

Naturally the big toe should not touch the end of the shoe. However, there are other considerations. Many people have second or third toes longer than the big toe. These also must have adequate room. Equally important is the fit at the heel and ball of the foot. In order to fit properly, a shoe must meet the test at a number of vital points. That is why an experienced shoe fitter is essential to assure good fit and good foot health.

Hundreds of Negro Pupils Boycott Allegheny High School

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Hundreds of Negro pupils boycotted Allegheny High School Monday, saying they stayed away because of threats from white pupils.
A school board spokesman said only 500 pupils reported for classes. He said most of the absent pupils were Negro. Allegheny has an enrollment of 1,000.
Several Allegheny pupils and their parents met with Clair Cogan, assistant superintendent of schools. A spokesman said the pupils and parents asked for plainclothed policemen in the school for protection.

The spokesman said the board agreed to the request.
Spokesmen for several black action groups said Sunday they would boycott Allegheny and Oliver high schools unless they got protection against white youths. The spokesmen said some 450 pupils would not go to classes.
The school board also reported about 25 per cent absenteeism at Oliver. Oliver has an enrollment of 1,050. The board said, however, that normal absenteeism is eight to 10 per cent each day.
